THE MOST EXCELLENT ORDER OF THE PILLOW

A Vancouver doctor, recently, informed the B.C. Division of the CMA that the ulcer is an employee of the body, from the employer's viewpoint. "The victim of ulcers is a man who gets things done," said Doctor Thomson. "He is a success in what he handles and often is over-conscious."

Well, there you have it. There I have it, too, and it makes me very depressed, because it so happens that I do not have ulcers. An insurance company which once employed me used to have a special rate for clerical men. Evidently the company had a poor opinion of the clerical, except as insurance risks. It seems that they lived a long time. Obviously, too, according to the good doctor, they didn't get things done and were seldom over-conscious.

From now on, I expect that when a man applies for a job, there will be a new question asked: "Do you have, or have you ever had ulcers?" Well, you know what to answer to that one if you want the job. These employers want people who get things done; therefore you must have an ulcer or get going on having one as soon as possible.

If you have any qualms about this, think of the glory which will accrue to you when you retire (probably at thirty-five) when a most grateful president of your company will say to the assembled fellow-employees (as they stand round your sick-bed): "This man was a man who got things done. This was not just a simple ulcer, a mere spot; this, your fellow employee, has a perforated ulcer!" and they will all bow their heads in wonder and admiration.

Well, I am not a medico, but I am inclined to doubt that employers value particularly the man who gets ulcers. I feel morally certain that there will be no new decoration called "The Most Excellent Order of the Ulcer" (and upon reputation) with the additional honour "With Perforation" seem to remember something about "Take no thought for the morrow shall take thought for the morrow of itself; sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

In other words, "Don't worry yourself into forty fits."

I recall men like David Lloyd George and Sir Winston Churchill who never, to my knowledge, had ulcers and yet who got things done while they bore what, to most of us, was an intolerable burden of responsibility.

I must be careful what I say or I shall have all the people with ulcers and stomachs on my neck. No ulcer and stomach don't do. But for goodness' sake, let's be fair. Surely something nice might be said about people with sinus trouble (I have it), for we don't like to be left out of the lime-light. We'd like a decoration, too, such as "The Grand Cross of the Plugged Nostil."

Frankly, I think the good doctor is full of wet hay. If his diagnosis is right then I am sure that he is wrong when he indicates the admiration of the employer for the ulcerated employee; and I would venture to advise employees to take to heart my quotation from Holy Writ and avoid undue worry, for once you have ulcers you are sunk!

Letter to editor

HALLOWEEN DAMAGE

The Editor,
Kelowna Courier

Dear Sir:
I would greatly appreciate the publication of the following letter: From time to time letters have appeared in the press advocating the abolition of "Hallow Eve" with which I heartily concur as it only serves as an excuse for the youth of the country to indulge in vandalism and theft.

In an endeavour to obtain immunity from such activities my wife spent the evening handing out candies, peanuts, etc. to all and sundry with the result that an expensive thermometer and magnet was stolen from the wall of my house and on my way into town this morning I note that all the rural mail boxes have been torn from the posts and thrown in the ditch.

It would be interesting to know the total value of damage done for one night throughout the country which must amount to many thousands of dollars which could be put to better purpose.

I therefore suggest that the local committee of Social Credit government forward a request to take the necessary steps for the "Total Abolition of Hallow Eve."

Thanking you in anticipation,
Yours truly
H. C. S. COLLETT

Births, deaths marriages show slight decline

There were 35 deaths in October of this year, compared with 30 for the month last year. Registered were 14 deaths, bringing the year's total to 150. For the same time last year there were 304 deaths.

Nine October marriages were performed, 165 for the year. There were 134 last year.

Law of supply and demand

It is rather surprising that many growers when discussing the problems of the fruit industry refuse to give to one important point the importance it deserves. The point is that regardless of how fine a piece of machinery may be it needs fuel to run.

The growers may set up the finest organization imaginable. It may be run with the utmost efficiency. It may be able to meet every internal eventuality. But unless it can sell fruit it is helpless.

And the selling of fruit is beyond the limits of control of any organization that may be set up. If the world market is such that competition is abnormal or if for some reason the buying public, as can happen, takes it into its head to not purchase fruit, there is nothing the most efficient organization can do about it.

"Nobody's going to stop me"

One of the most serious dangers of driving after drinking is that liquor gives most people a feeling of confidence in themselves, when they shouldn't have one.

In a recent head-on collision in the East, seven persons were killed, including the woman driver of one car.

Witnesses told that she had left a party in a wobbly condition.

"You can't drive in such a condition," friends reportedly told her.

"Oh yes I can," she allegedly answered, "and nobody is going to stop me."

Well, somebody did. Three other persons in her car were stopped, too; and three persons in the other car. They were killed.

For a good temperance lecture, it would be hard to find a better example. Six other persons killed because one person drank too much.

None of the six were in any way to blame, but they died just the same.

Stupid hunters

Inexperienced and careless hunters are losing themselves in the woods this year as they have done in the past hunting seasons and always will until they learn to use a bit of horse-sense. They head into mountainous, densely-wooded country without a clue as to how to find a way out again, or so much as a compass and matches. They hunt in pairs or in parties, separate themselves from companions and then get lost floundering around trying to re-establish contact. They go out alone with out telling anyone the area to be hunted over or giving an approximate time of return. They lose themselves and then complicate the job of the searchers by stumbling aimlessly through the woods instead of staying in one place and waiting until experienced woodsmen can find them.

All this can cause misery and sometimes injury or death to those lost, usually through their own stupidity; but on top of that a lost hunter causes anxiety for relatives, long hours of exhausting journeys for the searchers, and often severe financial loss to them as well. Thousands of dollars in wages are lost every season by men who put aside their own affairs to go looking for a lost hunter, who as often as not is a total stranger. Game wardens and police have their

Last year every producing area on the continent had a bumper crop of apples with the result that it was even difficult to give apples away. And there was little that B.C. Tree Fruits or any other selling agency or individual could do about it. This year, on the other hand, with small crops, apples are bringing prices that bring smiles to the faces of those growers who have crops. It is the old law of supply and demand working.

It is an old law and one, surely, that is obvious. There are countless illustrations of its truth around us every yday in both labor and materials. One would assume then that its influence on the fruit industry would be given full consideration by the growers; yet apparently it is not. There is an element which refuses to recognize the hard fact that no sale can be made without a buyer.

How helpless a passenger is in such an accident. The driver at the wheel is boss, and his passengers can only sit and take it. If they were sober, they must have seen the fatal crash coming, but what could they do?

It takes courage for a person to refuse to ride with a friend who leaves a party in a wobbly condition and insists on taking the wheel.

It would take courage to forcibly restrain such a driver from driving, but it should be done, even at the risk of losing a friend.

And a driver who airily boasts—"nobody is going to stop me," as he or she climbs behind the wheel has offered sufficient proof that she should not drive.

In this case it cost the lives of seven people including her own to stop her.

The advice our state patrol stresses—"If you drink, don't drive. If you drive, don't drink," is the soundest advice we know.

normal duties and what should be their leisure hours shot to pieces by emergency calls to organize searchers for irresponsible knuckle-heads. This is a time of year which the wardens and police through past discomfort and overwork have learned to dread.

Far too many people seem to expect, too, that when darkness falls and a hunter has not returned these officers should drop everything else, round up as many helpers as they can (usually men who already have done a heavy day's work) and plunge into the woods to look for him. Except for emergencies when it is known that someone has been seriously injured, no trained woodsman will ever begin a rescue expedition in dense country after dark, because the chances of discovery are remote and the risk of the searchers themselves becoming lost or injured much greater than when aided by daylight. On that account when the light goes a lost hunter should find the best shelter he can and resign himself to waiting out the night, thereby conserving his energy and avoiding the danger of falling over a cliff or into a river. In hunting, as in jungle warfare, the maxim should be: when darkness falls, all movement ceases.

Proposed plans for renovating house tabled

Proposed plans for renovating a two-story house owned by Nick Turk, 1441 Richter Street, were tabled for one week by city council.

Mr. Turk, who recently purchased the structure, plans building an extension on the front of the house.

During the brief discussion, Ald. Robert Knox recalled the city took a "realistic view" of old buildings, built between 1912 and 1925, each and where practical, allowed them to be converted into apartment or rooming houses. However, he said, unable to keep up these large structures, due to various reasons. Under the new regulations, council agreed to permit these older homes to be renovated into apartment or rooming houses.

Pillows

I've come to the conclusion that pillows have personalities.

And they're not all pleasing personalities, either.

I've been thinking quite a bit recently about pillows. They've forced me to. Most of those I use haven't been treating me very kindly. They seem to be infested with gremlins who take delight in annoying me by making the pillow uncomfortable.

One thing I like about the Vancouver Hotel is that it supplies two pillows for each guest: a hard one and a soft one. Oddly enough in the hotel I use two pillows, something I do nowhere else. I work them around until I get my head settled between the two and go blissfully off to sleep.

Come to think of it, the place seems to have something to do with what pillows I like. Take the veranda in the summer time. I almost burr when I go out there at noon and flop down on the couch for a fifteen minute nap. And I place my head on a very hard pillow and stretch out on my back! Nowhere else, never, do I sleep on my back. And yet, head on a pillow as hard as a board, there I'm quite happy.

And then there's the den. This is a "left-side" occasion and it takes three pillows to satisfy me: a small one in the corner of the chest-of-drawers and a harder medium-sized one as the base with a long softer one over both. I'm not quite sure what good the small one is but if it isn't there I just do not get comfortable.

It's in bed, of course, that a pillow can either be a blessing or a nightmare. The b.w. and I each use two when we read. (WE ALWAYS read.) My reading done, I take one pillow, flop it on the floor and settle down with the other.

Now there are four pillows around our bedroom but there are times when I swear that they've been changed. Some weeks each one seems comfortable and there are other weeks when there is not a comfortable one among the whole four.

There is one particular one which appears occasionally that is my pet. It's there, and then it isn't. I've even sneaked a look to see if the b.w. has it and more often than not she hasn't. Where it disappears to has me puzzled.

When it's around I snuggle down and doze off easily. When it isn't, quite frequently the gremlins nest up in the one I'm using and I can't scare them out.

I'll settle down, carefully turning the pillow over and punching to what appears to be about the desired thickness for my head. This unfortunately makes a lump somewhere like a ball and a ball is not too comfortable a thing upon which to rest your head. Especially when there are gremlins who get behind your head and gently but slowly push it off the ball. This happens, of course, just as I am dropping off to sleep.

Up I sit and go through the performance of arranging the pillow again. That, of course, is just what the gremlins want. I can almost hear them laughing loudly. Soon as I settle down again, into action they go.

This game is not too strenuous the first couple of times, but about the fourth or fifth, I find that I'm punching the pillow harder each time. This only serves to make the ball harder and the gremlins pushing job easier.

Of course, the thinner the pillow, the worse things are. There is one pillow about as thick as a physician bag which seems to have a habit of appearing every time my favorite fails to show up. It's the favorite of the gremlins, but it is not mine certainly.

I only remember one thinner pillow. It was in a motel in the State of Washington. It was a fine motel in every respect but this pillow. I'll never be a guest of that motel again.

Airport news

Adverse weather conditions curtailed flying operations somewhat at Ellison field during October. Cariboo Air Charters Ltd. had four planes operating, three for training and the other for charter work. Owner of one plane, Cliff Renfrew, took part in the search for a missing hunter in the Princeton area.

A Salmon Arm physician called CAC, saying that he wanted a patient—a young lad with severe head injuries, flown to Vancouver as quickly as possible.

The call came in at 1400 hours and at that time the large plane, a Cessna 195, was out on charter work, and was due back at 1530 hours.

Meanwhile a private plane owned by a Mr. Wallace, of Vancouver, landed at the field. Hearing of the problem he immediately volunteered to fly to Salmon Arm to pick up the boy, if CAC could deliver his passenger to Princeton.

This was arranged, and the boy was put under a specialist's care, and is reported in good condition.

Twice during the month, air force planes landed at the field on recruiting missions and about eight other planes have used facilities. CAC had flown over 130 hours, mostly on training flights.

Who remembers when?

From the files of The Kelowna Courier

FIFTY YEARS AGO—1905

J. H. Cowan has been appointed city constable and commenced his duties October 19. He was formerly employed on the S.S. Aberdeen.

A sharp northeast wind blew across the lake last week and caused damage among boats in the launch basin.

Amongst matters taken up by the council of the recently-formed Board of Trade, it was decided to ask the Farmers' Institute to co-operate in securing the inclusion of lamb's quarter, milk weed and prickly lettuce included in the Noxious Weeds Act.

FORTY YEARS AGO—1916

Early Sunday morning a fire destroyed the Raymer block, on the southwest corner of Bernard and Water. Also destroyed was the adjoining Opera House. A strong wind fanned the flames, and for a time the fire threatened a large part of the city. Total loss of the fire was estimated at $138,890. Several hours of hard work, coupled with dogged tenacity, on the part of the fire brigade was needed to confine the fire.

Destroyed all told was the Raymer block and its annex; the Opera House; Lawson's store; Muirhead's shoe store; Crawford's stationery store; the Raymer hall; the Mason's and Oddfellows Hall; Mason and Risch Piano Co.'s warehouse and a number of residential suites and offices upstairs.

THIRTY YEARS AGO—1926

The Rutland cannery is still making a run on apples.

About 90,000 boxes of unpacked apples are being stored in cold storage warehouse of RGE. They will consist of winter varieties which will be packed here.

Hallowe'en passed off very quiet here in town and there was an absence of hoodlums. There were no complaints of damage.

TWENTY YEARS AGO—1936

A vast amount of publicity was being given Kelowna at this time because of the effort to build the Kelowna-Naramata road by voluntary labor. The Halifax, N.S., Herald, under a three-column headline published an account of the undertaking with an illustration of the "shovel shaked" money being used to "pay" the workers.

Hallowe'en in Kelowna witnessed comparatively little damage to property, but in the rural districts, according to provincial police, there was some malicious damage.

B.C. and Nova Scotia captured all Canadian honors for apples at the Imperial Fruit Show, in Liverpool, England.

TEN YEARS AGO—1946

Apart from the odd high spirited celebrator, Hallowe'en was very quiet, police reported. Not one charge of drunkenness was reported and no police saw.

W. G. Townley, of Capilano Airways Ltd., Vancouver, told the aviation committee of the Kelowna trade board that his company is definitely interested in establishing air service between Vancouver and the Okanagan.

It takes both the pioneers of yesteryear and a true pioneering spirit of the people today to make a country grow and prosper. People of the Okanagan have shown this spirit and may well be proud of the tremendous growth and expansion that has taken place in the Valley in recent years.

Another form of pioneering has been done by Imperial Bank of Canada throughout British Columbia since 1895, helping the progress of the province by providing banking facilities whenever needed.

Today, because of the marked expansion in the Okanagan, Imperial Bank is opening three new branch offices to meet the growing need for additional banking services. These branches are to be situated in Kelowna, Penticton and Vernon. The Kelowna branch will be opening in the near future.

Modern packinghouse re-opens

Occidental Fruit Co.'s plant at Summerland will be officially opened Wednesday afternoon. The original packinghouse was destroyed by fire one year ago. Top picture gives an over-all view of the return-flow grader with the sorters at work. Designed by Bob Bleasdale, it is rated as one of the most efficient types of machines used in the industry. Picture below shows boxes stacked 15 feet high in the large cold storage area.

Occidental Fruit Co. will officially re-open modern packinghouse Wed. after disastrous fire one year ago

By PEG WHINTON

Just about one year ago, November 17, 1955, the Okanagan Valley awoke to the news that the Occidental Fruit Co. Ltd., Summerland plant was on fire and a total loss.

Leo Hayes and directors of the company decided to rebuild as soon as possible on the same site so that their business which had been operating for 33 years, could continue in 1956.

Late in March of this year, rebuilding was started, and now the most modern fruit packing plant in the valley is getting ready for open house next Wednesday from 2 to 5 p.m., when visitors will be welcome.

The floor space in the office area for walls with some mahogany panelling is 1800 sq. feet, and consists of a ceiling for the offices. The ceiling central hall leading to general offices, manager's office, rest rooms, cafeteria facilities and first aid. The floor space in the common storage is approximately 19,000 sq. ft.

An automatic oil heater supplies square feet of solid concrete slab perimeter heating to this area. The height of this entire area is 16 feet exterior of this portion of the plant, with the exception of the packing room which is located on the tile and there is twin seal glass outside wall and has a ceiling of 8' from there to the eaves. The inter-8' with a mezzanine floor. This floor finish is colored pumice blocks mezzanine allows approximately 3-000 square feet of low ceiling storage space for packinghouse supplies. The balance of this common storage area is used for assembly of packed fruit to be transported to cold storage by lift truck. It also gives adequate room for box-making equipment and supplies, and includes an area for feeding over-head box conveyor.

The shipping office, connected with a covered porch 20 feet wide running the entire width of the building, is well placed for loading. The roof on the common storage building is 60 foot glue laminated clear span beams, 2x10 joists, shiplap, 20-year pitch and gravel.

The cold storage is 100 by 192 ft., consisting of one room, 50 by 100 feet, and two rooms of 70 by 100 feet each, with a ceiling height of 20 feet. There are solid concrete slab floors. Interior finish on walls consists of six inches of fibre glass covered with ¼" veneer for approximately eight feet from the floor.

The dome type ceiling has eight inches of fibreglass, covered with galvanized wire mesh. The roof construction is made of 100 foot clear span bow string trusses, joists, sheathing and a 20-year bonded roof surfacing.

Other features include, flood lighting, electrically-operated doors, automatic water de-frosting units mounted in the ceiling.

This storage has a capacity of 135,000 boxes, and connects with a receiving platform measuring 100 by 120 feet, partially covered.

The engine room on the outside wall is approximately 16 by 30 feet and contains three 20-horsepower Freon compressors and an electrical panel, controlling the complete operation.

Along with a modern building goes modern equipment. The fruit is being handled from the motor vehicles by two squeeze type propane gas-operated trucks that handle 30 boxes, and place them on the stack separator that carries the boxes on a conveyor in piles of six to the automatic unstacker which unloads each box separately.

In the grader room is a tub with two sections and a return flow table grader with two sections which makes for easy handling of the new containers now being used.

With fruit from 140 growers in the area, and with 45 employees on the payroll, the man who keeps the operation running smoothly is Clare Elsey, who started as a grower in the district in 1911 and joined the Occidental in 1929. He is ably assisted by Bob Bleasdale who comes from a family interested in fruit packing. Charles Bleasdale is with B.C. Fruit Shippers, Summerland, and Fred Bleasdale is with RGE at Portland.

The two men are always looking for more ideas to improve this, the most modern fruit packing plant in the Okanagan.

Canucks trim V's, hold lead

VERNON — The old pro Willie Schmidt led the Vernon Canadians to their sixth win of the season Saturday night by beating Ivan McLellan with a shot from point with only one minute left in the game to break a two-all tie.

The Vees and Canadians staged one of the best games of the season on Vernon ice when they put on a good clean exhibition of hockey with only two penalties being called by Arnold Smith.

The Canadians took a one-goal lead in the first period as Ode Lowe took a blue line pass from Tommy Stecyk and went in to beat McLellan cleanly. Goal number two also came from the stick of Lowe. The Canadian smoothie took a pass from team captain Johnny Harns, went in and drove a low one at McLellan and as the puck dropped to the ice Lowe just reached over and pushed it into the net.

Young Gerry Leonard put the Vees back into the game by scoring one on a fluke shot. It hit Stecyk's skate and slipped into the net past Gordon.

PLENTY OF RUSHES

Both teams then went to work and put on a hard forechecking game for the 1,800 fans present. Just after the 14-minute mark Leonard again struck for the Vees second goal taking a pass at his blue line and going in all alone on Gordon, picking his shot and beating Gordon.

The final session was a crowd-pleaser with both teams putting on a great display of end-to-end rushes with lots of three-way passing. However it was left up to Schmidt to score the winner for the Allan Cup champ Vernon Canadians.

To show how even both teams were, shots on goal were Vernon 23, Pentiction 26.

Both Gordon and McLellan put on a real show of net-minding, at times they kept their team up by the boot straps. The line of Lowe, King, and Harns had good scoring opportunities but did not finish off in front of the Vees net.

PACKERS ROLL UNDER O'REILLY

Packers break hockey jinx beat Vernon, tie Kamloops

The cellar-dwelling Packers, with fighting Jack O'Reilly at the helm, chalked up one of their best week-ends in two seasons of play when they came out with a brand of hustling hockey that produced a win and a tie.

The win, accomplished on Friday night before a happy, noisy crowd of hometown fans, was an impressive 7-4 victory over the league-leading Vernon Canadians, and was a straight case of out-hustling and out-checking the Allan Cup champions.

The tie was historic, since it was the first time since December 11, 1954, that the Packers have been able to even partially break the jinx that has haunted them in every start in the northern ice palace, and it took the Kamloops Chiefs an extra period to come out with a 5-5 draw against them.

KELOWNA 7-VERNON 4

Kelowna Packers were really rolling under their brand-new mentor, a fiery Irishman named Jack O'Reilly, and handed the league-leading Vernon Canadians a 7-4 trouncing before an enthusiastic audience.

Leader in the smashing attack was Bill Jones, fleet center, who made a tall hat trick, earning four goals, two of them unassisted, as well as assisting on another.

O'Reilly, coaching from the bench played his lines smartly, changing them on the fly, and shuffling them extensively to get the most out of them.

Referee Arnold Smith was determined there would be no more protests to his leniency, handing out 19 penalties.

JONES ON HAT-TRICK

Ted Lebeda of Vernon was serving a minor just past the 15-minute mark, and the power was on, when Brian Roche snared the puck behind the net, and slipped it to Jones, who rapped it straight in the corner.

Willie Schmidt was serving a boarding penalty three minutes later when Jones broke away on his own, deked Hal Gordon, and flipped in a back hand.

Coming on in the second, Vernon had the pressure of Bill Swarbrick get a pass away to Mike Durban swinging in on the left side, and he raced in and drove a hard one that went right through between Gordon's arm and body.

AGAR BREAKS AWAY

Coach George Agar opened the Vernon scoring when he took a pass from Walt Trentini two feet outside the packer blue and raced in on Dave Gatherum, deking him and backhanding it in.

Jones broke away again and made a long rush from outside the Vernon blue to flip in a high backhand for his hat-trick goal.

Vernon went right round the bend in the third, and the force of their attack powered in three goals, but the Packers were right there with an answer each time, and the end result was the same.

Jones opened the scoring when he raced across the goal mouth from a face-off in the Vernon end, and flipped the puck in before Gordon could get across to cover him.

TANGLE OF LEGS

Schmidt came rushing in from the point as there was a big tangle of legs in front of Gatherum, and picked a hole in the tangle, ramming the disk home.

Youth took over after 11 minutes of flying, loose hockey, when Al Schaefer broke right in on Gordon, slamming one off his pads, that Greg Jablonski drove in for a corner.

Frank King was escorted in his hot corner, right off the goal for the next one, and he had lots of time to ram in Lowe's pass before Gatherum could get over to cover him.

Thirty seconds later Don "Old Sol" Culley, whistled in on the left side, cutting in hard, and led down a smooth pass to Bill Swarbrick coming in hard, for a pretty goal.

Lowe scored the final counter, with seconds to go, on a screen shot that gave Gatherum no chance.

Gatherum and Gordon turned in outstanding jobs in the nets, particularly in the last period when the shots were Vernon 38, Kelowna 32. Gatherum was particularly sensational in his handling of the hot rubber without holding it, under the new rule.

KELOWNA 5-KAMLOOPS 5

KAMLOOPS — Kamloops Chiefs and Kelowna Packers played to a 5-5 overtime tie in a ragged Okanagan Senior Hockey League game before 1800 fans here Saturday.

Despite the close score, the play rarely rose above the ragdolls, except in penalties as referee Lloyd Gilmour handed out 68 minutes in 24 penalties, including a game misconduct to Joe Kaiser who raising his stick to Gilmour in the overtime session after being given a 10 minute misconduct. Mike Durban also picked up a misconduct for slapping his stick against the boards.

DAWES GAMBLES

Coach Bob Dawes, with Chiefs trailing 4-3 and only 10 seconds left in regulation, pulled Jim Shirley from the Kamloops net in favor of a sixth attacker and Bill Hryciuk slapped a shot past Dave Gatherum to send the game into overtime.

Bill Jones and Greg Jablonski broke through the Kamloops team from center and Jones faked Shirley to give Packers a 5-4 edge at 4:50 of the extra session.

Buddy Evans scored the equalizer for Kamloops less than a minute later.

Both sides engaged in an all-out brawl in the second period after Chiefs defenseman George Whyte and Packers Don Culley got their gloves off for a private duel in front of the Kamloops net. The fracas saw Whyte and Culley get majors along with Chiefs Lloyd, Hinchberger and Buddy Laidler of Packers.

One scheme up, more to go

The C.A.H.A.'s latest scheme in picking a team to compete in the world championships is to have the Vernon Canadians play the Ottawa junior team they have picked as being possible championship calibre.

Coach George Agar is reported to be willing to play the game if he can strengthen to 17 men, and get permission from the O.S.H.L. to be absent from the league for one week.

Tips on touring

Everyone hopes he can avoid an accident, but not all are that fortunate. If you become involved, you'll find these tips worth remembering.

REMAIN at the scene of the accident. It's illegal—and immoral—to leave.

RENDER assistance or obtain medical help if needed. Be very careful with injured people; confine your aid to keeping them warm and controlling bleeding, unless you have completed a standard first-aid course.

GATHER the facts. Ask the other driver involved in the accident for his name, address, license number, registration, car make and insurance company. Get the names and addresses of all occupants of the other car. Make a diagram of the accident showing car positions and directions cars were travelling.

CALL the police. In all but very minor accidents, call the police or highway patrol. The officer will take charge and fill out an accident report. It's a good idea not to discuss the accident with anyone but the police and your insurance company.

ASK for witnesses. Take down the names and addresses of any bystanders who may have seen the accident happen.

REPORT any accident you're involved in to your insurance company as soon as possible. Make a report regardless of the seriousness of the accident.

ALWAYS have your licence, insurance card, and car registration

Frank Thorogood builds for the future

In 43 years, foreman carpenter Frank Thorogood has seen many improvements in building methods.

"Power tools, pre-fabricated sections and the use of new structural materials make all the difference," says Mr. Thorogood. "Developments like these have simplified our work — and make for stronger, more fire-resistant buildings."

In building for the future, Mr. Thorogood has enjoyed still another advantage — through the wider range of financial protection he can give his family because of modern developments in life insurance.

Life insurance gives today's families many new benefits. It not only affords them financial protection that is more flexible, but can also provide money for the children's education, for safeguarding the home mortgage, for arranging retirement income and for other purposes.

In these and other ways, the life insurance companies have progressed with the times . . . meeting the needs of people in all walks of life.

Life insurance companies are a major source of mortgage funds for Canadian families — last year they invested four hundred and sixty-five million dollars in this way.

Inter-union struggle will go to court on November 14

The inter-union struggle between the Teamsters and representatives of the old Federation of Fruit and Vegetable Workers Unions is expected to go to court in Vernon November 14.

The case will thus climax a year of legal proceedings, claims and counter claims since the fruit labor movement in the Okanagan split wide open at the annual convention of the Federation in Penticton last January.

At that time a majority of the membership had voted to affiliate with the powerful Teamsters organization. During the convention 12 so-called "rebels" walked out of the hall and it is this faction that has been seeking re-establishment of the old Federation.

D. H. Leckie, former secretary of the FFVWU and now business agent for Local 48, IFT, Kelowna, said the union is quite agreeable to the case going to court.

An examination for discovery is expected to be held in Vancouver shortly, said Mrs. Alex Larrett, president of the FFVWU, reported action was taken at a recent meeting of eight locals of the FFVWU reaffirming its desire to take the case to court.

The FFVWU has retained Alex Macdonald to conduct the case. Macdonald demanded that provincial royal commission investigate the fruit industry. The meeting unanimously approved the resolution originally adopted by the Penticton-Naramata growers.

A. D. Wilson, of Glenmore, presented evidence showing the returns received by growers on their fruit. The proposed investigation, he maintained, should cover the operation of both Tree Fruits and packinghouses and should go close to the systems of pooling.

In replying to certain remarks by Mr. Wilson, A. R. Garrish, president of the BCFGA, referred to the reserve fund of $340,000 held by Tree Fruits. One of the main purposes in creating this reserve, he said, was to enable research programs in the industry. It was on this basis that the grant was made to the K.G.E. The advance to B.C. Fruit Processors, however, was by way of loan and was covered by debentures of the processors, now held in the fund.

APPLE CIDER A report on the operation of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. was given by Nigel Taylor, and a review of the activities of B.C. Fruit Processors Ltd. was given by Mr. Land, who said that the grower would receive $16 in return for this year's program together with any other surplus it would be possible to distribute.

T. B. Reece was of the opinion that an experienced cider maker should be brought out from the Old Country. He was very apprehensive of the setback the cider program would receive if a ruin of it should be found to be defective in any way. We might not be able, he thought, to get the program off again to a second good start. The meeting took no action on this suggestion.

Winfield WINFIELD — Mrs. A. Gibbons, Randy and Shelley have returned home after spending a month with Mr. Gibbons in Kitimat where he is working. They flew up and returned by train and bus.

Only the members of the immediate family were present to witness the exchange of the marriage vows between Mary Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. White of Winfield, and Maxwell Harry, eldest son of Mr. C. H. Carne and the late Mrs. Carne of Nelson, in the Winfield United Church recently.

Rev. R. P. Stobie of Naramata officiated. The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a cocktail length pale pink veil and pink hand-made mits, and carried a corsage of pink and white carnations on a white Bible.

Mrs. Richard Rigby of Chilliwack was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a pale pink cocktail length lace and net dress and carried pink and white carnation.

Sailing dinghy nears completion but many "finish" jobs still to do

INSIDE OF SABOT shows centerboard trunk with both centre and aft seat supports in place. Arrangement of keel stripping around centerboard opening and the small skeg aft are shown in the illustration of the bottom. Note the two rubbing strips halfway between keel and chine. Exposed edges are bull-nosed.

"This is the fourth in a series on how to build an eight-foot sailing dinghy."

By HARRY FURNISS

Now that the hull is right side up, you will find an increasing temptation to stand off a few feet and admire the lines your handiwork has produced. But there is still much to do, although it is pleasant "finishing" work.

First of all, draw in the sheer with a batten. Plane the sides down to the sheer line. Sight along the sheer from time to time as you work, making sure the curve is "sweet", even if it means departing slightly from the line.

KNEES ARE NEXT

Then fashion the four knees of 1x4 inch oak. Knees are glued and screwed in place from the outside where the transoms meet the planking at the sheer line. At this point, decide on the ultimate finish of Sabot. If you wish to varnish these knees, choose pleasingly grained stock and work carefully.

Spread the sides of the hull with a temporary centre seat to make sure the knees will join the planking at the proper angle.

A small forward deck is necessary and inside braces of 1x2 must be fitted and glued to form a bed on which to glue the deck, which can extend two feet aft. A cross piece of 1x4, crowned on top to the same degree as the top of the bow transom, is next fitted and pinned to the centre line of the bow transom by a piece of 1x4. This work must be solid, for the 1x4 is later drilled to take the mast and will bear its thrust.

SEAT FOR MAST

Below the mast hole, trim down the knee and build a box around it to seat the foot of the mast. Glue and screw the sides of this "box" to the knee itself to provide rigidity and a firm base for the mast.

Then bend and attach the deck piece, to which a splash rail can be attached if you so desire.

The centreboard trunk comes next and should be made with an ample bearing surface where it fits the inside of the keel. As with other such curves, it is advisable to place the trunk in approximate position, and then with a pencil held flat on the bottom of the hull, draw a line along it, giving the actual curve of the keel at that position.

WORK CAREFULLY

Fit this trunk carefully for if Sabot is going to leak when finished, your trouble will probably come here. When ready, apply glue liberally to both the keel and face of the trunk, and, stretching a piece of cotton between the two, screw the trunk well down.

The centre seat, as you will see from the plans, fits across the top of the trunk (and is screwed to it) and can be secured at either side to 1x1 slats, glued and screwed (from the outside) to the inside of the hull.

The stern seat is secured, in a similar way, to slats across the transom and along the side of the planking. This seat will be quite firm with only two screws. No glue is used here in case you wish to remove the seat for greater leg room when sailing. All that remains now is to strengthen the sheer. Before rubbing strips to add strength to the sheer are placed on the outside of the hull, hardwood oak blocks should be glued in position first and screwed from the outside through the hull planking. If required gunwales could be added on the inside. Strips can be cut from 1x1 inch spruce, pine or yellow cedar.

Now turn Sabot upside down to again fit a square strip of oak along the bottom from the bow to the stern.

Questions and answers

Q—Should non-drip paints be stirred or thinned before using?

A—No. These "jelled" paints become liquid upon application by brush or roller. The pigments will not settle.

Q—Why does mildew form on paint and what can we do to avoid it?

A—Mildew may occur when paint is subjected to humid, damp or shady conditions. It is more likely that mildew will form on a soft opening in the door or by win-paint film than on the hard paint film. Ask your dealer for paints formulated to create a hard surface film.

Q—Is there a paint remover which can be mixed with water and not harmful to the hands?

A—Yes. Most hardware and paint stores have this item.

Q—What type of fire extinguisher is best for the home?

A—One that will smother grease, because most fires originate in the kitchen.

Q—How can I prevent closets from being damp?

A—Ventilate the closet with that mildew will form on a soft opening in the door or by win-paint film. Ventilating will bring dust down. Ventilating will bring dust down, but avoid most dampness.

BRACING of forward deck must be strong to support thrust of the mast. Note the half-lapped joints. Do not make mast hole until the size and type of mast is determined.

The thin forward end of the skeg hull in, but screw them into position from the inside out. Now get out your can of favorite crack filler and "putty up" all the aft to enable the thicker portion to be secured by screws from the inside.

It's usually a good idea at this point to attach rubbing strips along each side of the bottom—roughly half way between the keel and the chine. Mark these in position, drill the holes from the outside of the hull.

In Part V we will explain the construction of mast, rudder and the installation of floor boards.

Handy hints

A cork that is loose in a bottle can be expanded enough to fit snugly if it is soaked in hot water. Holes in window screens can be mended by fusing small pieces of mosquito netting to the screen with several coats of shellac. When dry, the netting will stiffen.

Now's the time after a summer of driving, to see that the radiator grill on your car is clean and clear of leaves, scraps of paper and other refuse. The cooling system cannot operate properly if the radiator fins are obstructed in any way.

Flat-head screws can be prevented from working loose if, after they are properly seated, you strike the head near the rim with a centre punch or nail. The displaced metal serves as an anchoring wedge.

PLYWOOD PROJECTS

Many projects need less than a full-size sheet of plywood, which is 4x8 feet. When planning the cutting, try to leave one edge of the scrap as it came from the mill. Then there is always one edge that is true and straight, when the scrap can be used for something else.

Kelowna Little Theatre will present first play of 1956-57 season "Dial M for Murder" Dec. 4-5-6

Kelowna Little Theatre's first production of the 1956-57 season, "Dial M for Murder," the crime play which successfully chilled the spines of New York audiences for 69 weeks, will be presented at the Empress Theatre, December 4, 5 and 6, for three evenings, with curtain time at 8:15.

Production is being directed by Janet Hayman, and its scene of an apartment in a fashionable part of London has been designed by Edric Oswald.

Bill Miller will be starred as a running ex-tennis champion who improves a hasty revision in his plan for his first career, after his plan backfires. This is the role played by Maurice Evans during the Broadway run and by Ray Milland in the motion picture version.

SUSPENSE PLAY

Jean Chapman will be seen as his doubly-jeopardized wife, the role performed in the film by Grace Kelly. Tom McLaughlin will be seen as the man who stands by her in her ordeal (portrayed by Robert Cummings in the film), and Ron Irwin will be the bland, persevering police inspector whose severity is masked by the most elegant of manners—the rich part that John Williams played in the Broadway stage presentation and in the movie. Ray Davis plays Captain Leggate and Alan Abernethy is Thompson.

Written by Frederick Knott, a British writer who was himself a noted tennis star in his university days, "Dial M for Murder" is a suspense play but not a mystery. There is no doubt as to who wants the 1937 he visited the U.S. for the first time as a member of the Oxford-Cambridge tennis team which played against Harvard-Yale at Newport, R.I., where he observed some of the social satisfactions enjoyed by top tennis players. And this helped him create the character of Tony Wendice in "Dial M for Murder." At the outbreak of World War II, Knott entered the British Army and served for six years, ending up as a major in the artillery. After the war he decided on a career as a dramatic writer, and served a year as a trainee with the Arthur J. Rank film organization in London.

White Cane Club members hear talk on world trip

A vivid account of their trip around the world taken last year, was given by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Adams, to the Kelowna and Vernon members of the White Cane Club at that organization's regular meeting held recently in the Women's Institute Hall.

Each stage of the journey, the stops, the social life of the places visited, all were described in such a manner that those listening were able to take the same journey in thought, and while time did not allow for as long a talk as the club would have liked, the hope has been expressed that Mr. and Mrs. Adams will be heard again at a meeting in the near future.

Serving the supper, during which Mrs. W. E. Anderson provided musical numbers, were members of the Dr. J. W. Knox Chapter, IOOE, Lions Clubs of both Vernon and Kelowna provided transportation, and presiding at the meeting was E. J. Clarke.

Couple celebrate golden wedding

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR E. HAYNES
Residents of B.C. for 20 years, and of Kelowna for the past four, Mr. and Mrs. Haynes celebrated their golden wedding on Saturday, when they held open house at their Willow Avenue home during the afternoon and evening.

Both natives of England, Mr. Haynes, who comes from Southampton, and Miss Alice Cull, whose home was in Hampshire, were married at Christ Church, Clapham, London, in 1906, emigrating to Canada in 1912, making their home in Winnipeg where, for 24 years, Mr. Haynes followed his profession as a stationery engineer, continuing this work after moving to B.C.

They have two sons and a daughter, Ernest D. in Winnipeg; Stanley G. in Toronto and Dorothy, Mrs. G. Haggarty, in Trail; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Winnipeg residents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Haynes, who were here during last summer, could not come for Saturday's celebration. Almost every remaining member of the family, including five of the six grandchildren and the great-granddaughter, were present, however. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. E. Angels' Church.

Canadian Press Staff Writer
In this age of science people aren't to be taken in by old wives' remedies or cure-all concoctions based on nothing more than superstition.

Take cosmetics, for instance. Some may be sceptical when reading the claims of a label of a cold cream jar or toothpaste tube. But the fact is, beauty care today is on a scientific basis.

Once a laboratory develops a promising formula living models try to prove its worth and medical records are kept. Then it goes to the government which insists it meet certain standards before set to rest on a drugstore shelf.

A far cry from the methods they resorted to in the days of Marie Antoinette! A popular concoction then called for the pulverized wings and claws of a pigeon mixed well with lily petals and fresh eggs, ground mother-of-pearl and camphor distilled with musk.

It isn't said—and perhaps just as well—that the mixture was supposed to do for a woman.

Nor did women always have the government supporting their quest for glamor. Indeed, in 18th-Century England a touch of rouge could have meant a jail term.

A statute passed by parliament read in part: "All women of whatsoever rank or degree that shall seduce or betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial teeth, false hair, iron stays, hoops, high-heeled shoes and bolstered hips, shall incur the penalty of the law in force against witchcraft and like demeanors upon conviction shall stand null and void."

PARTY PALATE
After a bridge party—the season's here again—the master minds do serve something good to eat, something special to talk about. Try this:

1/4 cup shortening; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar; 1 egg, unbeaten; 1 cup dates, pitted and cut in half; 1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts; 1 cup warm water; 1 1/2 cups sifted, all-purpose flour; 2 teaspoons baking soda; 1/2 cup Graham flour.

Place shortening, salt, brown sugar and eggs in a medium mixing bowl. Beat until blended. Combine dates, nuts and water in a small bowl. Blend together flour, baking soda and Graham flour. Add to first mixture, then add date mixture. Beat until flour is blended. Pour into greased 9 by 5 by 3 loaf pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for an hour. Remove from pan and cool before cutting.

TIMELY TIPS
Here is a time-saving tip for the lunchmaker of the family. Set aside a "lunch drawer" in your kitchen, preferably near the bread box, and keep it supplied with all the extras needed to prepare school lunches—waxed paper, paper napkins plastic containers and polystyrene bags. With everything so handy the daily chore becomes easy.

For this fall's bride who is busy planning a color scheme for her new home here is a helpful hint: choose the drapery material first. Then you can take your cue from the colors in the fabric when painting walls and selecting furnishings.

Oyama Hallowe'en party successful; prizes awarded

OYAMA Hallowe'en was celebrated in Oyama by a Hallowe'en party in the Oyama Community Hall, at which the children of the community were entertained with games, dancing and refreshments. The party was a joint effort by the various organizations in Oyama, with the Parent-Teachers Association supplying cakes, making a donation towards the prizes and finding the judges for the costumes. The Ladies' Auxiliary, Canadian Legion 189, also supplied cakes and arranged for the purchasing of the prizes, while the K. W. L. looked after the supper for the children. The Canadian Legion 189 made a cash donation, and the Oyama Community Club donated the hall and also a cash donation.

The judges were hard pressed to reach a decision on the costumes for there were many novel and well planned costumes in the parade around the hall which opened the evening's fun. In the pre-school class, judged by Mrs. H. Taylor and Mrs. Therese Neitsch, the prize for the best dressed girl went to Penny Lockhart, best dressed boy to Trevor Elliott, comic girl, Susan Stephen and comic boy, Jackie Allingham. In grades one and two, judged by Mrs. August Neitsch and Mrs. W. C. Carr, Karen Shumay was awarded the prize for the best dressed girl; Fraser Lee, best dressed boy; Lynda Schumeloff for the comic girl and Rogers Stephen as the comic boy.

In grades three and four, judged by Mrs. O. W. Hembling and Mrs. W. Sproule, the prizes for the best dressed girl went to Diederia Pothecary; best dressed boy to Phillip Townsend, the comic girl, Brenda Thomson; comic boy, Darryl Schumeloff. In grades five and six, judged by Mrs. H. Avenarius and Mrs. Marge Purdy, Marietta Brown was given the prize for the best dressed girl; Lynne Nairne, as the best dressed boy; Sandra Thomson, comic girl and Billie Allan, comic boy.

In the group competition, judged by Mrs. R. Nyfeler and Mrs. J. Danz, prizes were awarded to David and Diane Allingham as the most original and to the Trewhitt sisters, Theresa, Chrytel, Beverly and Caroline, as the best dressed group. In the teen-ager, junior high class, judged by Mrs. C. McLagan and Mrs. M. McDonald, Steve Dugate won the nod as the best dressed boy; Jeanie Carr as the best dressed girl. Wayne Townsend, comic boy and Barbara Thomson, comic girl.

O. W. Hembling judged the Jack-o-Lantern pumpkins and after a great deal of thought and consideration awarded Penny Lockhart for the pre-school class Fraser Lee, grades one and two; Mary Dugate for grades three and four and Irene Appleton for grades five and six. J. S. Gibb acted as master of ceremonies for the judging and awarding of the prizes, while Oyama's May Queen, Cheryl Trewhitt presented the prizes to the winners.

Following the presenting of the prizes the children were entertained by games and dances, under the able hand of the Oyama teaching staff, Mrs. V. Norman, Miss J. Roberts and Miss E. Balzar. Supper was served to the children in the Memorial Hall, and the party ended for the elementary school kiddies, at nine o'clock. Teen-agers and junior high students finished the evening with dancing to records over the PA system, which was ably handled by Dick Claridge for the evening.

Thanks to success of these parties, little damage was done in Oyama.
